

THE NIGHT WATCHER

THE Guardians do not approve of the Imps, but have tolerated their tricks as being in the best interests of Dartmoor until very recently, Now, however, things have got out of hand and innocent humans are being caught unjustly.

The imps origin is unknown as is their real purpose in the scheme of things. All we know for certain is that they are responsible when rocks slip, slide or wobble when people use them to cross running water. The imps take a perverse delight in de-stabilizing these stones, their excuse being, that they are punishing humans who persist in leaving litter on the moor.

The guardians have now decided that education is the real answer to those litterbugs and Lair Seeker has taken to night watches in order to try and catch the culprits red-handed. If you have been caught by these horrible little monsters, the imps, then you will know why Lair Seeker is putting in a night-shift.
